Biology

Utopians are a race of amphibious humanoids.

History

The Utopians are an advanced race and are similar to humans. They excel in science and culture, they are a warrior race and are extremely dangerous fighters on the ground. They have made many advances in military sciences since the Barlacert Invasion. After Utopia's first (and only) world war, the planet was unified. But, then an alien species called the Keroks race came to wipe out all Utopians, and harvest Utopia. A 98-year long war ensued. The Keroks had a technological advantage (the Utopians only having tech similar to Earth's atomic era), but they didn't have half the physical power or layout of the land like the Utopian soldiers. The war ended when the Utopian Military Attacked and destroyed the Kerok's main outpost. They live on a large, lush tropical planet, with extremely fertile soil, perfect for growing Lirivander fruits. The Lirivander is a special kind of fruit, it is purple, and lime green and their juice strengthens the immune system and speeds up the healing process by nearly 200X, and it even regrows lost limbs. However, it only grows one fruit every Terran 1.5 years. The planet Utopia is mostly ocean, with one supercontinent. The planet also has mighty Creatures native to the planet's ecosystem, like the Pitalo, Eocore, or the Haige. (see picture below.)

Military

The most dangerous mass-produced ground vehicle in the Utopian arsenal would be the ATUAM, most commonly called the autumn. It stands for All Terrain Utomachinery Assault Mech. It is a powerful and dangerous war machine that has turned the tide of many battles. Most soldiers that fight against these things once are not willing to do it again. It has one mounted energy cannon on its shoulder, high-velocity kinetic weapons, and an advanced AI brain. Its collective firepower is capable of annihilating almost any vehicle it comes across and can fire with impressive accuracy, making it equally efficient at anti-personnel missions. Due to these being so deadly, it can cause some fear and injures morale for its fellow soldiers so each one is given a unique voice and personality that reacts to the situation, and can even joke with other soldiers. (the best way to explain it for humans is that it is like BT from Titanfall.) It also is acts as a drone hive, and can use them for recon, medical assistance, military engineers, or in combat as well. It's AI is not limited to social interaction, and is also able to take in a plethora of information and put together the most effective strategy possible at the moment. It goes through enemy numbers, strength, weaponry, position, and the same for their fellow soldiers and generates hundreds of different scenarios in the blink of an eye. If an ATUAM is heavily damaged, it has a mobile repair function that allows it to take materials from its surroundings and use them to repair itself with utomachinery technology. (See utopian workers constructing an ATUAM)

Technology

The Utopian Union owes much of its economic and military success to its advanced technologies. Due to Utopia having a fragile ecosystem, they have been forced to make technologies that are non-polluting. This would include manufacturing, energy sources, and farming techniques as well.

Diplomacy

The Utopian Union is powerful, but they are somewhat xenophobic people. Since most of their encounters with other species have ended with them being invaded, they now are now slow to trusting another species.
